Ostend, Oct. 14, via London, Oct. 15, 12.10 a, m.—Ostend's fate hangs in the balance. The government has left; King Albert and the main military headquarters left Tuesday, and 60,000 panio-stricken people await, the action of the Germans, who are known to have a large force within 20 miles of the city.

Rich and Poer Huddled Teasther. 12.10 a, m .- Ostend's fate hangs in the balance. The government has left; King Albert and the main military headquarters left Tuesday, and 60,000 panic-stricken people await, the action of the Germans, who are known to have a large force within 20 miles of the city. The inhabitants are fleeting as fast as ships can be provided to carry them to England; hospitals were emptied today, and the docks were lined with injured soldiers. Hundreds were carried on litters, while those less severely wounded hobbled on canes and crutches, supported by Red Cross nurses, doctors, nuns and priests.

Wounded Given Preference. Wounded Given Preference.

The wounded were given preference on the transports provided for the beleaguered city, while 25,000 struggling people were massed upon the docks and terminals in an effort to find a place on the refugee ships. A German Taube flew over the harbor and struck terror to those below, many of whom had made their way here from Antwerp, in fear that the aeroplane might attempt to drop bombs on the docks and the great glass sheds which cover the joint terminals of the rallways and steamers.

The Belgian soldiers guarding the docks opened fire on the aeroplane and continued the fusillade for ten minutes. This created still greater consternation among the thousands of women and children, many of whom had sat for three days on the cement floor of the great terminal sheds, with their nerves at the breaking point.

No Escape by Land.

Relief Boats Crowded.

The relief boats to Folkestone are so crowded and hurried that they have little time to consider the question of meals, and frequently they are unable to offer even a cold lunch to the refugees crowded into every available inch of deck space.

Marked Attention for Wounded Soldiers.

Escape is cut off from all sides by land and thousands were still gathered miserably on the docks when the last relief ship left late this afternoon. No steamers leave Ostend at night be-cause of the danger from mines. Still the crowds remained on the piers, where they will pass another anxious night awaiting the dawn and more ships.

Aeroplane Over Harbor. Even the refugees who managed to find deck space on the crowded trans-ports were not all relieved of the ter-rible strain under which they had been laboring, for the watchful Taube fiew over the steamers, carefully ob-serving their movements as they sailserving their movements as they sailed out of the harbor.

The aeroplane did not drop bombs, however, as one of them had on previous days, when both civil and military hospitals were so narrowly missed by exploding shells that the Belgians charged that the Germans were almorate the benefitals. A Horrible Nightmare.

A Horrible Nightmare.

Last night was a horrible nightmare to the residents of Ostend and the thousands of refugees fleeing before the German invasion. Wounded soldiers were brought here by the score from Ghent. It is reported that they were engaged Monday near Ghent in a serious battle with the Germans. The allies are said to have had a small force against a large German force and were obliged to withdraw toward the west. Consequently there is virtually no obstacle to the German advance ally no obstacle to the German advance Firing Heard in Direction of Ghent. Firing in the direction of Ghent was heard plainly in Ostend on Monday and Tuesday. The terrified refugees who were at the siege of Antwerp blanched as they listened to the bombardment and increased the fear among the residents of Ostend by describing the horrors of that fallen fortress.

Business Houses Closed. Most of the business houses in Os-tend closed yesterday and professional men, merchants and hotel keepers joined the throng which dared not leave the waterfront for fear of losing their places in the ever-growing line of men, women and children clamoring for a chance to escape. Had Money But No Bed. All taxicabs and cab horses in Os-lend were taken by the army long ago, so there was little means of trans-portation. The tram cars were com-nandeered by the hospitals, and civil-ans had little chance to ride. The holels near the quay which remained open were crowded with refugees who had money and who begred for the pportunity to rent even a chair. No Government of Any Sort. Practically no government of any fort remains at Ostend; the departure of King Albert and military left only tivil guard and policemen who were uttempting to preserve order, but there s lack of direction, as the burgomaser, head of the municipal government, has left also.

Women and Children Trampled On The crowds mass about the gangways of the vessels, making the world embarking the refugees more diffi-it. Women and children are tramoled in the stampede as of frightenel mimals as every rumor. Bundles of dothes, trunks and bags are stacked werywhere in confusion, preventing the free movements of the crowds.

'Women and Children First." "Women and children first," is the service to a common cause. I am sure that the close union of the allied nations will ensure the definite tri-umph of justice and right."

London, Oct. 14, 7:50 p. m.—Herbert C. Hoover, chairman of the relief committee, interviewed today concerning the generous American efforts to alleviate the distress among the Belgians, expressed the opinion that unless the application of funds thus raised be under the direction of persons familiar with existing conditions in Belgium there will be inevitably an over-lapping and a great was of energy and money.

"All the American relief workers should combine into one commission," he said, "which should embrace all the American committees already established in Belgium and in London."

New Commander of Third German

Ostend today is amazingly unlike the gay Atlantic city of Belgium which formerly attracted most of the fashionable pleasure seekers of the world. The shutters are closed on the great hotels facing the splendid bathing beach. Rich and poor alike, residents of Ostend and refugees of all classes from the interior of Belgium, huddled together. But there are cars which afford comparative comfort to many of the women and children, whose only food for days has been bread and coffee provided by the committees which are attempting to keep Paris, Oct. 14, 3:15 p. m.—A Havas Agency despatch from Basel says: "General Barsevit has been appointed commander of the third German army by the emperor, according to intelli-gence reaching here. ## Being Bent Back

TOWARD LILLE AND COURTRA IN NORTHERN FRANCE

TO THEIR STRONGHOLD

Where Heavy Blow Which Will Bring a Decisive Result Will Be Struck From Russian Zone Both Warring Factions Claim Victory.

London, Oct. 14, 9.30 p. m.—While it is fully expected that the Germans will reach Ostend and other ports in the northwest of Belgium, if they have not northwest of Belgium, if they have not done so already, they will be met with a very stubborn resistance in their attempt to extend the right wing of their main army through Pas De Calais to the French northern ports. They have, in fact, fallen back in this region in the face of the allies' offensive.

A few days ago the German cavalry were fighting as far west as Hazebrouck and Cassel, but today, according to the French official communication issued this afternoon, the front tion issued this afternoon, the front of this battle extends from La Bassee through Estaires to Bailleul on the Belgian frontier, while across the bor-der the allies have occupied Ypres. Gaip for Allies.

This is a very distinct gain for the allies and shows that the German at-tempt to work around their left has failed, the German right being bent back toward Lille and Courtrai, both of which places the invaders hold with which places the invaders hold with strong forces.

It is here that the heavy blows which both sides hope will bring about a decisive result in the long drawn-out battle will be struck, and it is for this reason that the Germans will be able to make their way to Ostend, although even there some troops have been left to inflict what damage they can before joining the larger body furcan before joining the larger body further south.

The censorship has prevented any mention of the operations to the north of Arras which is probably responsible for the belief that the allies have propared what one military critic declares is "a slashing blow, which, the longer it is delayed, will be the more crushing in its effect.

Nothing from Left Wing. Of the recent fighting elsewhere, the French communication simply says that the operations are proceeding normally on the left wing as far as the Olse; that the allies' progress in the Berry-Au-Bac region is confirmed, and that on the right wing there is nothing hat on the right wing there is nothing new. For the first time, however, the French general staff takes notice of and denies some claims put forth by the Germans. It is denied that two French cavalry divisions have been destroyed and it is asserted, on the other hand, that the aviators with the French cavalry inflicted heavy losses on the German cavalry. It is also declared that the Germans have not come into
